- HR and organizational development consultant
- My core values: fairness, happiness and honesty
- Clients find me: positive, knowledgeable, practical and supportive
- Favourite pastime: being outdoors with family and friends

I have over 20 years' experience of working with people and organisations to improve employee engagement and performance. I have designed and developed nationally recognised and award-winning training programmes. My work ensures organisations have the right people in the right roles with the right skills at the right time.

I have been a Chartered Fellow of the Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development since 2014. I am an EMCC accredited Coach and hold a master's degree in Coaching Supervision. I have embedded coaching into organisational culture and have spoken numerous times on webinars and at national conferences about my work in this area. I am also an MBTI Step 1 practitioner and love to use this with senior teams to help them gain greater insight into how they work together.

My proudest professional moments have been supporting organisations to achieve consecutive top ten positions in The Sunday Times Best 100 Companies as well as gaining Investors in People Gold. I am passionate about employee engagement and I always work from a backdrop of supporting people to feel valued at work; helping them to understand how they fit into the bigger picture. In return, people deliver great results, perform better and realise their full potential. I have led on large scale organisational change and employee relations; working closely with trade unions to manage redundancy programmes and TUPE.

I live in the North West and enjoy walking and running in the beautiful countryside. I am mum to one and step-mum to three. I enjoy reading, cooking and spending time with my friends and family.
