

Kate Jenkinson

- Executive leadership coach and business spoken word poet
- My core values: creativity, compassion and trust
- Clients find me: inspiring, enthusiastic and fun
- Favourite pastime: performing poetry and standup comedy

I see the potential in everyone, the strengths, the passions and the doubts that may hold them back. I encourage them through coaching, mentoring and facilitation to take that next step, out of their comfort zone, into the unknown, not alone but together.

My practice is both analytical and creative – I like people to see and feel a measured improvement and am joyous at the potential for clients to surprise themselves with their own achievements.

In my spare time I am a performance, spoken word poet, giving voice to the hidden emotions in our society and corporate worlds. I am also learning standup comedy to enhance my confidence and stretch my own comfort zone further.

My family and I live in the North West and I enjoy a very active work and social life.

